

Guidelines | Reviewer

Manuscripts submitted to Management Revue may be either overview articles or empirical studies. In principle, contributions should make a substantial contribution to the way a problem or a theory is discussed.

In order to facilitate a high quality review process Management Revue attaches importance to the following basic rules

- Reviews should be friendly: Please treat the authors and their manuscripts with respect. Even if you disagree with the manuscript, remember that the authors have put a lot of effort into the manuscript. Always try to find something supportive to say.
- Authors should be able to learn from the reviews: Please specify strengths and weaknesses of the manuscript. Provide constructive comments and suggestions. Distinguish between limitations of the manuscript that may be rectified in a revision and those that you see as incapable of rectification in this way.

Criteria for evaluation of manuscripts incl

- the extent of value added
- how far a worthwhile problem is addressed
- state of the art literature review & discussion
- the depth of the theoretical contribution
- the appropriateness and quality of the empirical method
